

Protection of Women in Armed Conflicts in The Light of International Humanitarian Law

By

Rawa'a Younes Radwan Al Ma'aitah

Supervisor

Sara Mahmoud Al Arasi

The purpose of the study was to find out the means and mechanisms available to implement international humanitarian law in the light of the international changes of international law. The study adopted the descriptive analytical approach in achieving its objectives. The study found that women are the most vulnerable to armed conflict and are the victims of undisputed enemy soldiers and combatants. Therefore, the international community has joined forces to develop a set of international legal norms to protect women from the impact of hostilities. Both international and non-domestic (international), are subjected to many grave violations and abuses, which must be adequately protected against such systematic and systematic violations.

The study has been divided to Four Chapters deals Chapter I presents the introduction, Chapter II deals with the protection of human rights and the development of the protection of women's rights in international humanitarian law. Chapter III deals with the rules and guarantees for the protection of women in armed conflict under international humanitarian law. Chapter IV deals with safeguards and measures in the protection of women Women in International Humanitarian Law.